

Ryan Seacrest & Organic Olive Oil

New York, NY

You may know Ryan Seacrest for being a television star, however, did you know he's obsessed with olive oil? As stated by the celebrity on his radio show, his new "hobby" is planting olive oil trees and helping them grow. While he has not actually made olive oil yet with these trees, Seacrest said he's fascinated with the discipline and is "studying how to make organic olive oil".

However, Seacrest's obsession has prompted the wider olive oil community to recommend he learn from experts and take classes. As stated by Pablo Voitzuk, an olive oil consultant and educator, "if he is really serious about learning, he should contact a consultant to discuss milling, visit good producers, etc". In short, Ryan Seacrest represents the millions just one of the millions of people around the world fascinated by the wonders of olive oil. Let's hope he learns from the advice of experts and continues to care for his trees!
